I have a few ideas for this "Pongista". However I'm waiting for it to develop further. You can move the "bat" with w,s,i, and k. Then you can quit with Q. The ball doesn't make contact with the "bat" at this point in time. I'm sorry about that. I just want to get something to be working for a preview.

God, Jesus Christ, is number one.

Jesus Christ.

Well since it's the New Years and I've got to get to work I'll do a few enhancements. Normally the graphics requires assembly however I've upgraded my knowledge enough that I could do matrixes now. Did you know I failed in my matrix knowledge when I was in school? It is true. Anyways with matrix I'm able to do sprites in C. The credits are listed in a zip file within the zip file this time for speed of loading and quitting the game. You no longer have to wait through the splash screen. However if you want you can decompress the credits and keep it in the same directory the Pongista is in. Then it should detect the splash screens and show every time you play the game!

Bless me with 100 years perfect programming.....

Here is a further development of a programming technique that I'm beginning to master called "matrix".

In "matrix" you are able to draw objects for your games in your code.

Usually this is not possible for me unless you have assembly language.

Well since I gave and gave and gave everything for this Christmas I'm out.

So lucky for me Borland Turbo C 2.01 is given away for free for registered users.

Here is a special version for VetusWare. Thanks for allowing me to be on your board. I hope the advertisement helps in paying for the abandonwares. For the law enforcement people I am the producer of this software and hope that people accept it as payment for the other softwares that have been abandoned.
