Well I've managed to put it all together for the public viewing. I would like to sell it but I don't have the guts. It is a fun sequence of events to view in my opinion. My mom wants me to somehow find work and I would like to work doing what I enjoy programming. But I don't know how to go about it. This is from my private collection however I've edited the contents so it could be viewed by the public. The intro progresses all the way until the last screen with a little help by you. When you've reached the last screen the puzzle begins. It doesn't look hard at first however if you move the block around enough it becomes difficult. Anyways you could always exit if you tire and want to quit. It is meant to be played by two players. The first player shuffles the screen so it becomes a puzzle. The second player tried to return the puzzle to its original layout. hehe Enjoy!

I am the son of my real mom Huong Thi Thuyen Vu and my real dad Nguyen Binh Thuy. I have two younger sisters from the same parents. They are Nguyen Khoa Thuyen and Nguyen Khoa Thi. In this program I have reduced the warping field so it would be faster. To activate the warping field just press q for quit during the screen with the crucifix. Thank you Jesus Christ.

GOD 0 A.D.

I Nguyen Khoa Tien dropped out of college sometimes ago. However I have 1 credits short of a liberal arts degree. I actually had more than 2 years of official programming work done in college but I was lazy and took the short cut so I decided to get a 2 year degree in Liberal Arts. Well GOD says it's not in my destiny to get a 2 year degree so I kept studying at home except I majored in theology. I read The Holy Bible for two to three years and completed it 3 times. During my major in theology I quickly picked up on programming again learning C and assembly language. Specifically I picked up on Borland Turbo C 2.01 and Borland Turbo Assembler 4.1. For two years I worked at home honing my skills. Today I have dwindled my programming down to just Borland Turbo Assembler 4.1 (also known as TASM). You see of the Borland products I have assembly language is the only language that I personal own through my real mother Huong Thi Thuyen Vu that requires building a software from the bottom up. There is no libraries to start you off like in C. So that is why there is no licensing. However Borland Turbo C 2.01 and Borland

C++ 2.0 (bundle) has a copyright license restriction because of their proprietary libraries. Many of the libraries are extremely useful. For instance sine and cosine and other mathematical functions. Some of Borland's packages are tighter licensing than others. And the good news for my family is that we happen to have Borland Turbo Assembler 4.1 that came with Borland Turbo Assembler 5.0 (bundle). Anyways to make a long story short I have to build all my routines from scratch... So these are all my own proprietary source codes that produce this product.

I'm back on my Microsoft Windows Vista Home Premium French (32bit) Edition on my MacBook Pro 2009 Model. Well I'm dual booting it with Snow Leopard.

The point I am making is Apple is really a quality product so far. Did you know you can have the battery removed and it continues to work if you have it plugged in? It is true for this model. Did you know you can have the disc drive removed and it continues to work? Also, it is true too. Did you know it can have its harddrive replaced with another one? hehe Well that seems obvious however some many of the cheaper models these days going for $200 is sealed to the motherboard. So you cannot remove it and upgrade it in anyway. What I am saying is for a computer going on 8 years old it is not bad. There is a dent on there and it is not the $2000 price tag of the one I was swindled out of, but Thank you Jesus Christ that it is good enough to use and everything is working so far for my needs. GOD is indeed the greatest of all seeing GOD is the only one who is able to perform such miracles! For the rest of my life I serve the GOD who sent Jesus Christ to earth 2016 years ago etc. Actually I serve GOD who sent Jesus Christ to earth 2016 years ago for eternal life from now on. Thank you Jesus Christ.

I have had a hard life for my 42 years of living so far. However I enjoy my programming life. I love programming. Thanks mom for buying for me all the Borland products so I could program in my elder years. Thank you dad for sending me through programming school so I get a good start. For my two sisters I'm proud of you two for graduating while your brother here could not have the smarts to do so.

Once again my real two parents gave me the head start by putting me through programming education. I think the most important part of my life is when I was just a kid and they bought for me a computer with a programming instruction booklet in it. My dad being a very loving person wanted me to have a skill that I could carry on when I grew up. He told me that before we parted. So I always remember him Nguyen Binh Thuy. In this upload I've added a few shortcuts so to speak. When you type many words for your message and press ESC you have the option to quit early by pressing q. During the screen where The Holy Crucifix is flying around you also have the same option. This allows you to bypass my INTRO a little faster just in case you are bored or tired of waiting.

These little updates are merely fun for me since it's something I enjoy doing. Programming is not only my hobby but it is also something I hope to do one day to support my family. I'm just hoping I get good enough to be marketable with all the DOS games out. At least now I have something of a niche.

Finally! The scoring section is in. Also the walls have been set up to move to a different pre-defined location after each INRI release in the game section. If the INRI is lined up right you will score unless there is a system difference. Even between DOSBox between different users the timing has been known to be somewhat different. However you should receive a score unless there is a major system change. DOSBox 0.74 does have internet abilities.

Well this is the Christmas theme wovlen into the INTRO. So it is one big program. DOS has a base memory of 64k and this program takes up about 40k. Nothing much new except the screen has been changed to look more like snow!

I've been working on a few enhancements so the intro is a little smoother. The scrolling on the second screen has been slowed down considerably for readability while trying to retain simulated multitasking. It is actually polling and that is a way to make it seems like it is multitasking when it is just doing a little of each at a time. On a faster processor this would make it seem effortless.

Anyways like always nothing much is new. Just a little enhancement at a time is how I'm approaching it.

Happy early merry Christmas to all!

Well here is a biggie! I've been holding out. This one is one from my real dad Nguyen Binh Thuy. The circle routine came from my real dad sending me to college to be able to do. However my real mom Vu Thi Thuyen Huong keeps me verifying the routine. Hope it is all good. Just a little special first page.

We have a special effect in this one. Depending on how knowledgeable you are about DOS it only has 64000 bytes of memory available. I've used about 58000 bytes. So many 12% space left and that's a pretty big gap for stacks and special reserved functions.

Here is a intro breaking the DOS 64k barrier. DOS officially comes with 1024k however only 64k is accessible at a time from my studies. However I've managed to break the 64k barrier... somehow hehe There are 3 files that comes with this software. If you don't have the 3 files installed in the same directory of the main software it would not look that good; However it would work!!!

As mentioned in the previous post the 64k barrier has been broken. What I didn't tell you is I've also used up all 1024k of DOS memory. hehe You see... I put my program in the first 128k and the rest of the memories I've used for a buffer. So it is really an efficient way of producing a large program. Many of the routines I've created makes it possible to actually expand the usage of the memories.

A special thanks to my friends at Borland; I'm still using Borland Turbo C 2.01 and Borland Turbo Assembler 4.1 to this day...

Loving memories to my real dad who sent me through school while he could for programming;
RIP dad Nguyen Binh Thuy!!!

Love to my real mom Vu Thi Thuyen Huong who is still with me today putting up with my childish behaviours!!!

My two sisters Nguyen Khoa Thi and Nguyen Khoa Thuyen is still the best showing off their degrees!!

Obviously GOD will always be the creator of all and has is and will always be undefeatable gleanings#

(this one is compatible with or without an image) If you leave out the image then it should still work. If you include it then all the better! hehe

Hello to my real two sisters Nguyen Khoa Thuyen and Nguyen Khoa Thi. After you have the one screen warp the letters inwards. You press 1, 2, or 3 and the following one of 3 pictures displays for the puzzle game. Initially you only had the option of Jesus Christ picture. Now you have 2 others: my real parents or my entire real biological family current to date.
