Documentation Part Number: Disk 690-5002A, Audio Cassette 942-0387A (Side 1:027-0013A, Side 2: 027-0014A) This is a software and audio cassette demonstration of the Apple Macintosh. It visually guides you through the use of Macintosh, the Finder, and typical Macintosh applications. This disk contains a customized pre-release of the Macintosh System Software. (System 0.85 Finder 1.0). Most notably, the system icons still show a Macintosh with a Twiggly 5.25" floppy drive. Additionally, this finder does not hide the "desktop" file, which causes a slight visual glitch in one of the demonstrations. To use this software, boot this disk in an emulator or on a real Macintosh and begin playing the included cassette tape audio file. Important: This software is very buggy. It is only intended for the original Macintosh 128k. It may crash or run too fast in emulators.

In 1984 Apple Computer unveiled their Macintosh. It included a new user interface that revolutionized the way people thought about computer interaction. Originally referred to as simply "Macintosh System", the underlying OS was a single-tasking disk system for the Motorola 68K CPU. Significant changes were made in MacOS 7.x. The Macintosh originally came bundled with a Guided Tour of Macintosh, MacWrite, MacPaint, and a Tour of MacPaint and MacWrite. Font Mover was included on the MacWrite MacPaint (Write/Paint) disk.

Apple MacPaint 1.0 (MacWrite 1.0) Jan 1984

https://vetusware.com/download/Apple%20MacPaint%201.0%20_MacWrite%201.0_%20Jan%201984/?id=18254

This is the first version of Apple's word processor and drawing program bundled with their Macintosh computers. At release, MacWrite and MacPaint were basically the only software available for the Macintosh. As such, they were influential in defining what the Macintosh was and how users interacted with it. Important: MacPaint 1.0 will ONLY run on Macintosh 128k, 128ke, 512k, and 512ke machines. It will not run on a Macintosh Plus or later. If you attempt to do so, you will receive the error "There is not enough room in memory for MacPaint".
